Three engines and about 10 coal carriers of the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad derailed shortly after 2 p.m. Sunday along a section of the company's track between Bangor and East Bangor. A company spokesman said the reason for the derailment has not yet been determined and normally scheduled rail traffic will be rerouted to avoid the area. There were no injuries in the mishap and work crews are scheduled to begin repairs today. (Arnold photo)

B52s bomb N. Vietnam; South claims first victory

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 heavy bombers have begun flying missions over North Vietnam for the first time since 1967, the U.S. command said today.

President Nixon approved the latest escalation of the air war as part of the allied effort to stop the 11-day-old Communist offensive in South Vietnam, military sources said.

The lumbering B52s, which cost $8 million apiece, had been avoiding North Vietnam and the lethal Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles (SAMs) installed there.

B52s bombed North Vietnam for the first time April 12, 1966 in the Mu Gia pass area 75 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). The raids were stopped November 27, 1967.

B52s also flew the heaviest raids in the Saigon area in six months late Sunday and early today against the Communist offensive which has swept to within 34 miles of the capital.

The South Vietnamese claimed their first major victories against the Communist offensive in a pair of tank battles on the northern front

Sunday but North Vietnamese forces drove government troops out of four bases and intensified the fighting near Saigon.

Five Americans were killed and 19 others wounded in Communist attacks on two U.S. positions Sunday and a Marine pilot was listed as missing after his plane crashed en route to Vietnam.

The U.S. command said five waves of the Thailand and Guam-based B52 stratoforts bombed around An Loc, the provincial capital under Communist siege.

On Sunday South Vietnamese forces patrolling Route 13 running north from Saigon to An Loc fought off a Communist ambush 31 miles north of Saigon.

The U.S. Command said bombing of North Vietnam continued today for the fifth straight day "in response to the Communist invasion of South Vietnam through the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ)."

South Vietnamese troops fought sharp skirmishes around the northernmost provincial capital of Quang Tri this morning but the city did not appear in danger.

The U.S. command said American warplanes flew 360 missions in South Vietnam Sunday and an undisclosed number of strikes into North Vietnam.

UPI Correspondent Stewart Kellerman said from Hue that South Vietnamese troops were also forced out of artillery base Rife 10 miles south of the city.

Senate schedules key vote on president's war powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With bloody fighting raging in South Vietnam, the Senate scheduled a key vote this week on a war powers bill that would in general require a president to obtain congressional consent before sending American troops into foreign conflict.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted failure for an attempt to kill the measure by sending it to the Judiciary Committee which today resumes politically explosive hearings on the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general.

Despite stepped-up American air and naval support for the South Vietnamese Army, Mansfield said he did not believe the intense fighting was having any effect on the war powers debate.

"An offensive works both ways," Mansfield told reporters during the weekend. "Both sides are killing, both sides are creating refugees, both sides are creating orphans."

A vote is set for Tuesday at 2 p.m. EST on whether to refer the bill to the Judiciary Committee. It is a compromise measure providing that under circumstances requiring swift U.S. military response, a president could commit troops — but no longer than 30 days without congressional approval.

The TTT hearings head into their final two weeks with Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., the leadoff witness today as the Judiciary Committee investigation continues into the company's pledge to subsidize the GOP National Convention.

Wilson, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, represents San Diego, which will host the convention in August. He said in an interview that TTT pledged $400,000, while company President Harold Gencen testified that TTT pledged $200,000.

In other action, the Senate Commerce Committee meets this week to consider a national no-fault insurance bill and Senate hearings begin on the adequacy of school breakfast programs aimed at giving poor youngsters a nutritional start in the morning.

The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to complete action on a bill to share $3.5 billion a year for five years with local governments and $1.8 billion a year with state governments.

The House Interior Committee begins a full-scale study today of the nation's energy needs over the next 15 years.

Sen. Muskie counting on Gov. Shapp's help

SCRANTON, Pa. (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, says he is counting on Gov. Milton J. Shapp to help him gain the majority of Pennsylvania's delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

"We're going to win in Pennsylvania," Muskie said Saturday at the conclusion of a two-day campaign tour of the state. "But we're going to need all the help we can get from Gov. Shapp."

Muskie said a Pennsylvania victory was important because the state had so many delegates — 182. Shapp has endorsed Muskie and has been campaigning in his behalf.

Earlier in the day, Muskie told a crowd in Erie that the Nixon administration should not sign the Great Lakes water quality agreement with Canada unless it included provisions for the reduction in phosphorous discharges.

Pilot, amateur skydiver arrested for hijacking

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — FBI agents arrested an amateur skydiver and law enforcement student Sunday for the hijacking of an airliner in which $500,000 was paid to ransom a United Air Lines jet's 91 passengers.

The suspect, Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., 29, a combat helicopter pilot in Vietnam who once taught Sunday School for the Mormon Church, was arrested as he prepared to leave home for a Sunday drill with his National Guard unit.

FBI agents dug up the yard of McCoy's modest brown brick home without finding the half million dollars in cash which the hijacker picked up in San Francisco last Friday before he bailed out of the airliner near Provo.

However, they seized three big boxes, a small box and two brown suitcases they said "contains evidence" from the home and sped to the Salt Lake City FBI headquarters in secrecy.

Agents in Provo answered "no comment" when asked if the ransom money had been recovered.

McCoy was arraigned before a U.S. magistrate and held on air piracy charges, which could bring a death sentence.

He was described by persons who knew him as a quiet, reserved person. A fellow student in his police administration class at Brigham Young University said he "wanted to make his dent on the world by uncovering organized crime."

A pupil in his Sunday School class said "all he ever talked about was sin."

A casual conversation with a friend about skyjacking, and the concern of his sister-in-law over his absence from home last Friday evening turned suspicion on McCoy, according to the FBI.

The friend, a Utah highway patrolman, said McCoy talked about how a successful hijack could be pulled off. Last Friday, when the hijack drama was unfolding over the western skies and in San Francisco, McCoy's sister-in-law telephoned the same patrolman saying McCoy was not home and she was "scared to death" because he had tried to enlist her in a hijacking scheme.

During his brief appearance before U.S. Magistrate A.M. Ferro, McCoy was quiet and appeared calm. His only remark to newsmen as he faced the charges of pulling off the biggest airline ransom hijack in history was: "It's embarrassing, let's face it."

The FBI declined to say whether the ransom was recovered.

McCoy was accused of hijacking the United Air Lines plane over Colorado Friday and forcing it to land in San Francisco. The hijacker, who was carrying two guns, a grenade and plastic explosives, allowed the passengers to leave the plane after the airline paid $500,000 ransom. Then he forced the pilot to fly over Provo where he bailed out.

Richard McCoy Jr.

McCoy nice guy but really shy

SANDY, Utah (UPI) — "He's a very nice guy, quiet and likeable, really a shy individual," was the way a skydiving instructor described hijack suspect Richard F. McCoy Sunday.

Bill Dause, instructor at the Alta Skydiving Center south of Salt Lake City, also described the 29-year-old McCoy as an "inexperienced" skydiver.

Dause estimated McCoy had made 30 to 40 sport jumps at Alta and said, "We've been keeping him on short jumps because of a stability problem he's been having. And as far as I know he's never done a night jump."

The man who hijacked a United Air Lines jet and took $500,000 bailed out near Provo, Utah, in pitch darkness.

The parachute instructor also said skydivers frequently discuss hijacking planes and that he gave McCoy some advice "in a joking sort of way."

"Anybody who has made a few jumps has talked about doing a hijacking," Dause said. "Most of us have made up one or two schemes."

Dause said that during such a conversation with McCoy he told him it would be foolish to jump with an unfamiliar parachute.

"They could bug it or cut the lines," Dause said, and described a type of parachute small enough for a person to carry aboard an airliner in a handbag.

The instructor said a hijacker could use "a reserve chute—the kind that pops out from the chest. It's light and small enough to fit in an AWOL bag with a harness, where a full-size chute would be too big."

Dause said the problem of jumping from a jetliner three miles in the sky in the middle of the night "would be very difficult for someone with as few jumps as McCoy had."

Assassins killed by guards

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI)—Security forces in a blazing gun battle Sunday killed two of the assassins of Zanzibar President Sheikh Abeid Karume, Radio Zanzibar announced. The third of the four gunmen reportedly committed suicide.

One assassin was shot to death Friday at the headquarters of the ruling Afro-Shirazi party after the gunmen burst in and gunned down Karume, 67, as he was playing cards with friends. But the other three had gotten away and reports reaching here told of a house-to-house search for them.

Radio Zanzibar, the official government news organ of the spice island 20 miles off the coast of Tanzania, said Sunday's gun battle took place at Bunbweni, 16 miles from Zanzibar Town.

The broadcast, monitored here, said one of the assassins was killed on the spot. The second died of his wounds as authorities were taking him back to Zanzibar Town. The body of the gunman believed to have killed himself was found in the old Arab quarter of Zanzibar Town, the radio said.

Humphrey sees primary race wide open until May

By United Press International

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said Sunday that the race for the Democratic presidential nomination was still wide open and that it would be mid-May before a trend would develop.

The Republican National Committee, meanwhile, charged that the Democrats, in their effort to raise campaign funds, were spreading lies about the relationship between the GOP and International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Humphrey, at a news conference in Dayton, Ohio, said the Democratic nomination was still up for grabs—presumably among himself, and Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George S. McGovern—and that "you won't be able to tell what's developing until mid-May."

The former vice president also said that if elected he would retain the Pay Board and Price Commission that were created by the Nixon administration to control inflation, but that he would seek stricter enforcement of Price Commission regulations.

Humphrey said that President Nixon should seek United Nations help in ending the fighting in Vietnam and that the main objective should be disengagement of U. S. forces.

Many visit Krushchev burial site

MOSCOW (UPI)—The grave of former Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, who was buried almost secretly without ceremony last September, was the center of attraction Sunday at the Novodevichy Convent Cemetery on this Russian Orthodox Easter day.

There was no monument marking the grave of Russia's one-time No. 1 atheist, but it was covered with a carpet of fresh flowers and the centerpiece was a basketful of dyed Easter eggs.

The eggs, in Russia's old pre-Christian tradition, are meant to provide food for biers which symbolize the souls of the departed.

Although the convent cemetery, Russia's second ranking pantheon, contains the remains of many of the country's most famous citizens it was Khrushchev's grave that almost everyone wanted to see.

Fire critically injures inmate

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—A 20-year-old female inmate at the Lehigh County Prison was burned seriously over 70 per cent of her body late Saturday when fire broke out in her cell.

Alberta Lee of Allentown was admitted to the intensive care unit of nearby Sacred Heart Hospital with second and third degree burns. She was listed in critical condition.

Prison officials said she was alone in her cell when the fire alarm sounded shortly before midnight. The blaze was confirmed to the cell and firemen removed charred remains of a small folding cot after they brought the fire under control.

Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes dies at 92

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—Former Supreme Court Justice James Francis Byrnes, secretary of state under President Harry S. Truman and close advisor to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, died Sunday at the age of 92.

Byrnes, a key figure in mobilizing the nation for World War II and negotiating post-war treaties, died at his home here after an extended illness.

The short, dapper Byrnes, who also served in both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives and was governor of South Carolina, had been hospitalized on two different occasions in recent years after heart trouble.

A spokesman at the Byrnes home said he died at 1:30 p.m. President Nixon, spending the weekend at his Key Biscayne, Fla., villa, ordered the White House flag to be flown at half mast in honor of Byrnes.

"No man in American history has held so many positions of responsibility in all branches of our government with such distinction," Nixon said. "He was a great patriot who always put his country ahead of his party."

The President said he had

contacted Mrs. Byrnes to offer assistance, express his sympathy. He said Mrs. Nixon would represent him at the funeral.

Byrnes made one of his last public appearances in March 1969, when thousands gathered around his modest suburban home as President Nixon and many of the nation's top legislative leaders paid him a call.

"Never in American history has one man held more high offices with distinction than has Governor Byrnes," Nixon said as he stood by the frail Byrnes and his wife Maude on their front porch.

Byrnes remained in declining health in recent months and had not been able to leave his home. He had been scheduled to attend a public ceremony May 2 to unveil a statue of him on the statehouse grounds.

Byrnes was born May 2, 1879, in Charleston, S. C., just after his mother had been widowed. He dropped out of school at the age of 14 to support her, but read law books and began his public career as a small-town prosecutor.

He was first elected a Congressman in 1910 and served 14 years in the House. In 1930 he won election to the Senate and became a fast friend of Roosevelt, then governor of New York.

Roosevelt named him to the Supreme Court in 1941, and a year later at the President's request he became head of the Office of Economic Stabilization.

Roosevelt described Byrnes as "assistant president for the home front," but passed him over to choose Truman as his new running mate. Some historians said the reason was sectionalism, and Byrnes resigned in 1945.

He returned shortly after Roosevelt's death to become secretary of state, a post he held for 567 days filled with travel to 10 international conferences, numerous confrontations with the Russians and tough peace treaty negotiations.

He was secretary of state when the first atomic bomb was dropped on Japan and attended the Potsdam Conference with President Truman.

He came away from negotiations with the Soviets highly distrustful of them, and said, "You cannot rely on the Soviet Union keeping any obligation that was not in its interest."

Chaplin highlights Oscar's

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Charlie Chaplin's triumphant return to the community he helped establish as the world's entertainment capital will provide tonight's Academy Awards ceremony with its brightest moment in years.

There was a possibility, however, that a strike might block out television coverage of the 44th annual awards presentations. The International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, Local 33, which has been working without a contract since July 31, was meeting Sunday to vote whether to strike against the television networks.

NBC planned to telecast the two-hour show nationally (10 p.m. EST) from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center.

Chaplin, whose "Little Tramp" became a symbol of Hollywood's silent days, will be presented a special Oscar this year.

The Oscar will be awarded the white-haired, 82-year-old film pioneer—an outcast from the United States for more than two decades—by Academy president Daniel Taradash for his contributions to movies as a writer, director, actor and composer.

Helen Hayes, Sammy Davis Jr., Alan King and Jack Lemmon will be hosts in place of the perennial Bob Hope. And it was possible that best actor nominee George C. Scott—who last year refused to pick up his best actor award—might appear at this year's awards.

Nominated for best picture of 1971 are "A Clockwork Orange," "The French Connection," "The Last Picture Show," "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Nicholas and Alexandra." Jane Fonda in "Kluge" is the only American actress nominated for best actress of the year.

Miss Jackson won last year for "Women in Love" and Miss Christie was the 1965 winner for "Darling."

Instead of a mechanic telling you what's wrong with your car, now your car can tell you.

The Volkswagen Beetle is the most intelligent automobile on the road today. After all, what other car can tell you how it feels in plain English?

You see, running throughout every 1972 Volkswagen is a network of sensors reporting the condition of key points in the car to one central socket.

(His Beetle, in effect, is wired like the space capsules that took Man to the Moon.)

This fall, you'll be able to drive it into an authorized Volkswagen Dealership and something extraordinary will begin to happen.

Your car will be plugged into a computer and begin speaking to you, telling you what's right and wrong with it. Only vital service points will be checked and the results will be printed out for you to read.

Things like your front wheel alignment, engine cylinder compression and electrical system will all be checked, without human error.

Checks that are normally made in minutes will take seconds. And when all sixty are completed, the print-out sheet is yours to keep.

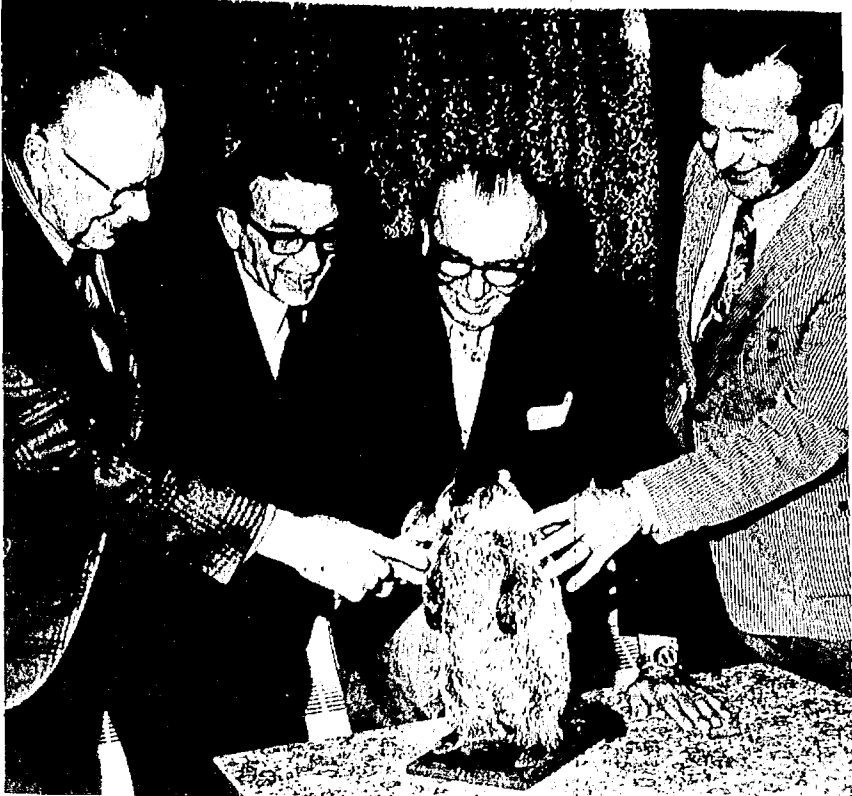

So now you have two choices.

A mechanic telling you what he thinks may be wrong with your car.

Or your car telling you for sure.

West End wanderings

Grateful taxpayer?

By MAUREEN RUFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — In this tax mania society of ours, just about everybody is complaining about that April 15 deadline, which is slowly creeping up on the individual citizen.

Just about everybody is complaining about every tax he has to pay at this time of year — everybody but one, that is.

There is actually one Polk Township resident who says he derives pleasure from paying local taxes.

According to a letter received by Polk Township Tax Collector Winifred Beers, Peter Hoyt Brown, a part-time Kresgeville resident who is an architect and planner in Philadelphia, says he enjoys paying taxes in an area that has "beauty, character, and wonderful people."

"I enjoy paying this tax because I feel I am getting more than my money's worth," said Brown.

In Polk Township, the roads are good, always plowed soon after a snow; the schools seem to be good, and the way of life seems to have many, many advantages over living in a big city.

Brown, who has lived part-time in a country house some four miles north of Kresgeville for the past year and a half, said the West End is a beautiful part of America with active farms, vacation homes and rolling hills and woods.

"It has not yet been ruined by the ugly, insensitive, speculative development, which has destroyed forever so many similar areas across our land," he said. "Here in Philadelphia I pay a lot of taxes, but the roads are congested and full of potholes, the schools are poor, public transportation is poor, and all other services you pay taxes for are less than adequate."

At the present time, Brown is only able to get away on weekends to the country that he loves so much. In the future, however, he just may become a full-time resident and full-time taxpayer.

Perhaps, even then, his attitude will be the same and he will still be one of the few people in this tax mania society who actually enjoys paying taxes.

Kangaroo pounces on drug abuse

BRODHEADSVILLE — Kathy the Kangaroo is making the rounds at the Pleasant Valley School District to tell young children about drugs and health.

Provided for the youth in the West End by the Western Pocono Jaycees, Kathy appears in a special coloring book, which was prepared by the U.S. Department of Justice and the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The green kangaroo romps through the 16-page coloring book warning children never to take drugs belonging to someone else. The book explains how drugs make you well when you are sick, but remind children that medicine is not to be mistaken for candy.

In further comments, the book warns that drugs should only be bought from a pharmacist and only parents should give children drugs.

Full of funny cats, storks and a wide variety of humorous jungle animals, the book emphasizes to children that only sick people need drugs. "Well people who foolishly take drugs for fun can only become sick," says a droopy looking pelican.

According to the Bureau of Narcotics, the coloring book is intended to provide a basis for the discussion of medicine and drugs in children's lives. The book constantly emphasizes that "Only Sick People Need Drugs."

According to the bureau this is a concept that can be easily reinforced and will stick with the child whenever the problem of drugs arises.

A parents' and teachers' guide in the back of the coloring book suggests that children and adults should go over the coloring book together so children can understand all the ideas presented.

According to Jaycee Publicity Director Peter Lambert, the book is being made available by Jaycees as part of the group's state program, "Wise Up! Why Dope?"

Anyone interested in learning more about the drug abuse coloring book can contact Lambert at his home in Gilbert, or can contact any of the Western Pocono Jaycee members.

Tree talk slated for Milford

MILFORD — Dr. Robert Nuss, Professor of Ornamental Horticulture at the Pennsylvania State University will be the guest speaker at a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Presbyterian Church here.

His talk on trees, will be cosponsored by the Penn State Extension Service at the request of the Shade Tree Committee.

He will discuss desirable species in plants, their care, management, problems and benefits. The interest in trees in this Pike County community was initiated by the Milford Garden Club who, during the past, have staged "Tree Bees" to replace trees that had died or had to be removed.

Local leaders and officials felt it was necessary to go beyond this "holding action" and to form a true committee.

An inventory of the trees in the borough will begin in the near future through the cooperation of the Department of Environmental Resources and the Gifford Pinchot Chapter of Foresters.

Pocono officer promoted

TOBYHANNA — First Lt. Larry F. Scanlon was promoted to his present grade in a recent ceremony at Tobyhanna Army Depot.

A native of Baltimore, he entered the Army in February 1970, after graduating from the University of Maryland, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in industrial education.

West End park take-over discussion on tap today

West End Bureau BRODHEADSVILLE — Supervisors from Chestnut Hill, Eldred and Polk Townships will meet with members of the Monroe County Park Commission in Brodheadsville tonight to discuss the possible take-over of the West End Park facility.

In a joint meeting two months ago, county park commission officials asked the township boards (Ross Township was invited to all meetings, but did not attend.) to take over complete responsibility for the running of the $100,000 park.

Expenses for the operation of the facility were estimated at $3,000 per year at that time; the county said ticket revenues would probably total $1,200.

After this initial meeting, the supervisors decided to take the matter back to their boards for discussion.

On March 13 the supervisors met jointly to discuss the possible takeover and decided they would not take any definite action on the matter until Elmer Kreger, chairman of the Monroe County Park

Commission, furnished the boards with complete cost figures and a written proposal on the details of the takeover.

Originally the proposal and the cost figures were to be mailed to the individual township boards so the matter could be discussed at their April board meetings.

The original request was misinterpreted, however, and Kreger is planning to present the written proposal and the cost figures to the supervisors at tonight's joint meeting.

The supervisors are expected to present the information at their May board meetings and reach a decision on the matter sometime next month.

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q—I am a property owner in East Stroudsburg and I am confused about the borough's snow removal ordinance. I have a sidewalk which runs only halfway in front of my property, while the rest of the sidewalk is a path worn in the dirt. Am I responsible for shoveling the path even though a sidewalk does not exist?

A.M., East Stroudsburg

A—According to the borough ordinance governing snow removal operations, you are responsible for shoveling a passageway on the dirt pathway. The ordinance states any walkway must be cleared. The ordinance also states the walkway must be cleared within eight daylight hours after the snowfall has ceased. Failure to comply can result in a fine of $25 plus costs.

Q—I have been a property owner on North Fifth Street in Stroud Township for 35 years. In that time the pavement of the road has increased greatly because of continuous resurfacing. However, no runoff has been provided by the state, and the runoff has become small.

Drug abuse program set

BRODHEADSVILLE — A special drug abuse and family problems program will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight at the Pleasant Valley High School cafeteria by the Western Pocono Jaycees.

Marijuana, drinking, communications, values of moral attitudes, prejudices, and discipline are some of the topics which will be discussed by both parents and students in small, roundtable discussions.

The program will also familiarize the participants with the Confront II program.

The local drug abuse program, under the direction of Drug Abuse Chairman Gary Shupp, is being sponsored as part of the Jaycees' regional project on the problem.

Economy plan may change public policy

HARRISBURG (UPI)—When does cost cutting in government change public policy?

That is a question which many state officials are facing now as they try to implement the recommendations of Gov. Milton J. Shapp's Management Review Task Force.

The 45-member task force last month unveiled its 885 specific recommendations, designed to save $276 million a year in state government. Shapp wants department heads to tell him by April 19 how they will implement the recommendations.

Shapp is anxious to see results from his cabinet, particularly because legislative leaders from both parties have criticized the report. They say it will suffer the same fate as most studies of state government — the fate of being either forgotten or ignored.

The task force, made up of businessmen, said it tried to skirt policy decisions in the report and stick to simple economic moves. But the members admit their proposals may directly affect policy.

For example, one of the recommendations is "Select an alternate system for retailing and distributing liquor."

"The present system," the report said, "evolved in the era immediately following prohibition. The intention was to permit consumption of alcoholic beverages while limiting their availability and discouraging promotion of their use."

The Liquor Control Board can boost its profits above $50,000 a year if the retailing is changed, according to the task force. But the legislature never has changed the policy.

Asked whether the suggestion is actually a change in public policy, a spokesman for the task force said it might be.

"Although we tried to stay away from policy decisions," he said, "in this case, we tried to go in the direction they seemed to be moving.

"Thinking has changed since the law was passed. The intent of the law no longer is being followed."

The spokesman said that the task force often found itself up against outdated policies.

"Normally," he said, "when we felt the policy of the department was wrong and we couldn't keep our mouth shut, we simply said 'make a study.'"

The report is peppered with such recommendations for study of policy. The spokesman said the task force also proposed studies where it felt it "did not explore the situation deeply enough."

A survey of the departments and agencies showed a few of them felt the task force was out to change policy — particularly the Department of Community Affairs, the Turnpike Commission and the Pennsylvania State University.

"It is suspected," said a spokesman in Community Affairs, "that they wanted to cut programs that deal with the poor. They hit on the right areas of concern, but not the right details. The report is not written clearly enough."

He said the task force wants to eliminate the "Model Cities Partner Cities" program and the Bureau of Human Resources.

In 1971, the bureau took steps to eliminate partner cities, he said, but the program was retained after officials realized that the state received $10 from the federal government for each dollar it spent of state funds.

The spokesmen also said salaries in the Human Resources Bureau are paid almost entirely out of federal funds. He said the department was particularly concerned about losing the bureau's manpower training program.

"We too want to eliminate the manpower training program in its earlier form," he said, "but we want to change it into a program of follow-up counseling and drug counseling."

The task force said the management of Penn State's Milton Hershey Medical Center needed a complete overhauling.

"Financial management is almost nonexistent," it said, "and accurate cost information for decision making is completely lacking."

Penn State president John W. Oswald said the task force jumped to conclusions "based on a misunderstanding of the specific cases at issue."

"I disagree . . . that annual savings of $624,000 could be realized by reappraising the objectives," he said. "This would be possible only by changing much of the basic mission and character of the Medical Center."

The task force also proposed that the Turnpike be made toll-free, with the federal government assuming most financing costs and the state Transportation Department taking over maintenance.

"To abandon the turnpike would be unthinkable," said Lester Burlein, chairman of the Turnpike Commission. "Unfortunately, there are no federal tax monies available, nor will there be any in the foreseeable future."

Burlein said there was no reason to change the 32-year-old tradition of having tolls.

"We can follow the recommendations of the review team and let the turnpike deteriorate as many of our state highways are deteriorating," Burlein said "or we can, by turnpike toll revenues, make all the vitally needed improvements to bring the highway up to interstate standards."

Burlein proposed a $400 million improvement program for the highway last week, a direct conflict with the task force's assertion that all turnpike money should be spent on paying off bonds immediately.

Mansfield asks facelifting for sagging U.S. Capitol

WASHINGTON (UPI)—That stately lady, the U. S. Capitol, is sagging with age—and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield for one thinks it's high time for a full face lift.

Mansfield was a member of a small, high-level congressional commission that sparked a furor both in Congress and in architectural circles recently by recommending that the Capitol's West Front be rebuilt and extended up to 88 feet at a cost of some $60 million.

The West Front—the side that looks down The Mall toward the Washington Monument—is the last remaining exposed wall of the original Capitol for which George Washington laid the cornerstone in 1793.

The extension would cover up that wall, built of sandstone and now cracked and crumbling, and provide some 285 highway offices and meeting rooms for members of Congress.

In a weekend interview, Mansfield defended the decision against the screams of horrified history lovers and architectural purists. He said it was "a disgrace" that the wall is now propped up by heavy timbers.

"I think this extension is needed," Mansfield told a small group of reporters. "It will fit in very well aesthetically and sort of round it (the building) out."

A similar extension and rebuilding in marble of the Capitol's East Front was completed in 1962 at a total cost of $24 million, despite public outcry against the idea.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S. C., charged that extending the other side as well would destroy the building's proportions and make the Capitol's famous dome "look like a beanie perched on the back of a college freshman's head."

Hollings, chairman of a Senate appropriations subcommittee that must approve the congressional budget, persuaded the Senate to adopt language blocking the project until Congress takes another look at the entire idea.

That language was hooked as an amendment onto the legislative appropriation bill for the upcoming fiscal year and has now gone back to the House, where it is expected to get a sympathetic reception.

But the Senate vote was close—40 to 35—and Mansfield, who led the fight for the project, vowed to battle on.

Final countdown for Apollo begins

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—

While Apollo 16's astronauts relaxed and went flying Sunday, their launch team made final preparations to begin the long countdown this morning for next Sunday's flight to the moon's mountainous highlands.

"We're in pretty good shape," reported Launch Director Walter J. Kapryan as engineers and technicians got ready for the start of the countdown at 8:30 a.m. EST.

Veteran moon pilot John W. Young and Thomas K. Mattingly and Charles M. Duke, both making their first spaceflights, are scheduled to set out on their 12-day expedition at 12:54 p.m. EST next Sunday.

With the launch one week away, the three astronauts had a break in their tough training schedule Sunday and spent much of their time in their quarters at the moonport. Cloudy skies and a strong east wind kept them from the nearby Atlantic beach.

The three astronauts, however, reviewed their flight plans part of the day and Duke went for a flight in a T-38 jet trainer with Fred W. Haise, the backup commander for the Apollo 16 mission. Astronauts frequently fly their sleek white jets to unwind during the final days before launch.

The wives of Young and Duke were in the spaceport area to visit their husbands, but Mrs. Elizabeth Mattingly remained home in Houston. The Mattinglys expect their first child later this spring.

The countdown includes 104 hours and 30 minutes of scheduled launch preparations. A total of 43 hours and 54 minutes of "hold" time is spotted throughout to give the ground crew time to rest and catch up on any lagging work.

Apollo 16 must be launched by 4:43 p.m. EST Sunday or the astronauts will have to wait a month until the proper sun lighting conditions again occur at their moon landing site on a hummocky, volcanic plateau north of the Crater Descartes in the central lunar highlands.

Priests condemn IRA actions

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Roman Catholic priests condemned from their pulpits Sunday the Irish Republican Army's terrorist tactics in Northern Ireland.

The unprecedented call by parish priests to the IRA to stop fighting was made in a statement aimed specifically at those conducting the IRA campaign and read at all Masses.

"As priests working in these areas, we know that the people want to see an end to armed conflict, an end to internment and an end to violence by the military," the priests said. "They want to see peace, reconciliation, negotiation and discussion."

The appeal, read by priests throughout Belfast, said violence only heightened the barriers between the minority Catholic and dominant Protestant communities of the British province.

Open meetings

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Public Welfare Secretary Helene Wohlgemuth has asked all state hospitals under her jurisdiction to open their board meetings to the public.

She made the request to the top administrators of the department's 29 institutions for the mentally ill and the ten state-owned general hospitals.

Scott linked to scandal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott tried to help a real estate speculator, who had been convicted of conspiracy to defraud, regain the lucrative privilege of mortgage guarantees from federal agencies, the Philadelphia Inquirer said in a copyrighted article Sunday.

The article charged that Scott interceded in 1969 with the Federal Housing Authority (FHA) and the Veterans Administration (VA) for Theodore Clearfield, a real estate speculator who was indicted again on fraud charges two years later.

In a statement issued in Washington Sunday, the Pennsylvania senator said: "The attempt to implicate me in a housing scandal is absolute rubbish."

"My office receives thousands of requests from Pennsylvanians who have problems with government agencies," Scott said. "Only a routine constituent interest was shown by my office in the case."

The decision to reinstate Clearfield was "totally within the power and authority of the FHA and VA," the senator said.

The newspaper said that Scott wrote a letter to the VA's Loan Guarantee Division urging that Clearfield be reinstated. The 1969 letter, reprinted in part in the Inquirer, referred to "the unfortunate circumstances in 1962 when he was placed on a restricted list by the VA in Philadelphia."

Clearfield was restricted in 1962 following a U. S. District Court conviction on charges of conspiring to submit phony mortgage applications to the VA.

The Inquirer charged that after his reinstatement Clearfield used FHA and VA mortgages to sell defective houses to poor families in a North Philadelphia ghetto.

The article also said that Scott did legal work for the firm until 1970, and that the company's office staff has been active in the senator's campaigns.

The Inquirer said part of Scott's relationship with Clearfield is detailed in a confidential report prepared last year for the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The newspaper said it obtained the document while investigating the Philadelphia office of the FHA.

80 nations to sign treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

About 80 nations, including the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain, will sign a treaty Monday banning biological and toxic weapons at ceremonies in Washington, London and Moscow. President Nixon is expected to attend the Washington ceremony at the State Department.

The 15 article convention was negotiated during the last several years at the conference of the Committee on Disarmament in Geneva. The U. N. General Assembly endorsed the pact on Dec. 16, 1971, by an overwhelming vote of 110 to 0 with one abstention.

France, which has never taken up its seat at the 26-nation Geneva Conference, is expected to boycott the treaty.

Mary Kathryn Wydra wed

STROUDSBURG — Miss Mary Kathryn Wydra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodrow Wydra of 724 Ramapo Lane, Stroudsburg, and Kenneth Allen Predmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Predmore Sr. of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, were married on Saturday, April 8 at St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church.

Father Francis Barrett officiated assisted by Rev. Harold Eaton. The church was decorated with large arrangements of white gladiolus and green carnations at the front altar and similar smaller arrangements at the side altars. The pews were marked with white bows. Organist Margaret Garwood played "The Living God."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white sate-peau full A-line gown with Venice lace and pin-tucked trim, featuring a high neckline, long bishop sleeves and attached chapel train. Her Camelot headpiece was made of matching Venice lace and seed pearls with an imported French illusion veil.

She carried a nosegay of white gladiolus and stephanotis with white bows entwined within flowers and long green streamers.

The maid of honor, Kathryn Galozzo of Stroudsburg, the bride's cousin, wore an apple green voile gown with white Venice lace trim, featuring a high neckline and bishop sleeves. Her headpiece was of matching apple green voile with a Dior bow and she also carried a nosegay of assorted spring flowers with green bows entwined within flowers and long green streamers.

The bridesmaids, Emily Galozzo, Marlene Woodrow and Eileen Wilson, and junior bridesmaid Rosanne Wydra, the bride's sister, wore similar gowns and headpieces and also carried nosegays of assorted spring flowers.

Mrs. Kenneth Allen Predmore (Arnold's Studio)

Jody Riebel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Riebel of R.D. 2 East Stroudsburg, was the flower girl, dressed in the same attire as the bridesmaids and carrying a white basket filled with assorted spring flowers.

The groom's cousin, Michael Wescott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wescott of East Stroudsburg, was the ring bearer.

Donald Predmore Jr. of St. Petersburg, Fla., was his brother's best man, James Wescott, the groom's cousin, Joseph Woodrow, the bride's cousin, Clinton Frantz III and Mark Monahan were the ushers.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua blue coat and dress trimmed with blue pearls and beige accessories and the groom's mother wore a yellow crepe coat and dress trimmed in white and yellow at the waist with white accessories.

Corsages of white carnations and white roses were presented to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Nunzio Galozzo of Stroudsburg, and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Clayton Predmore of East Stroudsburg.

A reception for 225 guests was held at the Eagle's Social Club in Stroudsburg which was decorated with green and white streamers and white bells. Music was furnished by the Pocono Playboys.

Leaving the reception in a pink and blue knit jacket dress, the bride will honeymoon with her new husband in Long Beach, Calif.

Graduated from East Stroudsburg High School, the bride is now employed at the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. Her husband is also an East Stroudsburg High School graduate and is serving with the U.S. Coast Guard stationed at Long Beach, Calif.

Miss Woolever April bride

STROUDSBURG — Miss Cindy Lou Woolever, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woolever of R.D. 4 Stroudsburg, was married on Saturday, April 8 to Edward William Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stevens of 217 Colbert St., Stroudsburg.

The Rev. Marshall Riu performed the wedding ceremony at the Zion United Church of Christ. Mrs. Olga Weidlich at the organ accompanied Mrs. Ruth Dietz. The wedding music included "Treat Me Not To Leave Thee," "O Perfect Love," "Wedding Prayer," and "The Lord's Prayer." The church was decorated with candles and spring flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of organza and Chantilly lace with a rolled collar and long full sleeves. The front of the gown was trimmed with lace appliques which also adorned the sleeves and long flowing train. The headpiece was a lace-covered mantilla attached to a floor-length veil. The bride carried an arrangement of white miniature carnations, daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and ivy.

Miss Phyllis Eilenberger of Shawnee was the maid of honor, dressed in a long Juliet-styled gown of chiffon and saten with a ruffled collar and wrist length ruffled sheer sleeves. The gown's bodice was white and the bottom, accented with a ruffle along the hemline, was orchid. She wore an orchid headpiece similar to the bride's, to which a shoulder-length veil was attached. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers accented with a white doily and long white streamers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Maryalice Kearney, Mrs. Curtina Heckman and Mrs. Ann Duncan, wore the same ensembles as the maid of honor.

Elwood Longyore of Saylorburg was the best man and the ushers were Tim McManus, Lloyd Heckman and

Mrs. Edward William Stevens (Jack 'N' Jill Studio)

Larry Gordon.
A reception for approximately 150 guests followed at the Sheraton Motor Inn with music provided by Benny Falcon and his orchestra. After a wedding trip to Fort Monroe, Va., the newlyweds will make their home at 514 Bryant St., Stroudsburg.

The bride is a Stroudsburg

High School graduate and is now employed at Stroud Manor Rehabilitation Center. Her husband is also a Stroudsburg High School graduate and was graduated from Pennsylvania State University with Associate Degree in drafting and design. He is now employed at IBW-Martin.

Style, size, cycles vary in newer dryers

The sale of regular dryers has really boomed since the advent of durable press. Now about 40 per cent of American homes have dryers, with electric dryers being the most popular.

Many people buy washers and dryers as a pair so they'll match. This may be important to you if you plan on locating your equipment in your kitchen, laundry center or bathroom as opposed to a basement area where color and style aren't noticeable.

You'll find that both washers and dryers are more highly styled than they used to be. You can even find color and wood grain finishes and other decorative touches on many models.

Dryer drums are larger than they used to be, and some are being made still larger as companions to larger washers. Remember that there is no standard in the laundry equipment industry for load size in either washer or dryers. The best way to load your washer or dryer is by volume or bulk.

The least expensive dryers will usually have a timed cycle. More expensive models will have automatic cycles, durable press cycles and time cycles with heat selections suitable for the load. Durable press cycles will have a longer cool-down period. Dryers don't really have new innovations but you'll find different features on different brands. Among the newer features are end-of-the-cycle signals for telling you when clothes are dry. This is especially important when drying durable press clothing.

Modern dryers have less heat and more air flow than dryers made a few years ago. If you had an older dryer that got quite hot, you might have gotten into the habit of using low heat selections for all loads.

But with a new dryer, a low heat setting could be one reason for wrinkles in durable press. Low heat is not sufficient for durable press.

For the best results from a new dryer, follow the manufacturer's use and care instructions. Remember, dryers have changed and your new dryer is not the same as your old one.

FIVE WORDS TO THE WISE

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder
D. C. Q. C. O.

Five words to the wise are "TAKE CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS FIRST." When Chioprac first became known, it was only tried after everything else failed. In 75 years it has built up a marvelous record of results with diseases pronounced incurable. No health method ever had a tougher assignment, and that Chioprac succeeded is the finest tribute in the world to its sound of restoring the condition of health.

It is beyond the trial stage. Chioprac is not only successful with various kinds of pains and aches, but this unique method of health care has proved to be extremely successful in dealing with internal disorders of the stomach, intestine, heart, liver, gall bladder, respiratory system, circulation and nervous system.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific Chioprac, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chioprac, Orthopedic, Brodheadsville, Pa. Phone: 992-4787.)

The Slim Gourmet

By BARBARA GIBBONS
What do turkey croquettes, creamed cauliflower, chicken a la king and cheese souffle have in common? Besides being fattening, that is!

They all depend on white sauce for their base, that calorie-grammed concoction of cream or milk and flour and fat. Depending on what cookbook you follow, white sauce (or cream sauce) can soar as high as 1,000 calories a cupful, turning the most harmless fish filet from friend to foe.

So many recipes depend on white sauce . . . if only you could erase those unneeded extra calories, you'd open up a whole new area of culinary delights that are diet-safe!

Here it is, a decolorized white sauce that gets its smoothness and good nutri-

It all started innocently enough. Like many another bridge foursome which plays on rainy days, we decided instead of playing for money or prizes or a quarter a corner, we'd each put a quarter in the pot and when we got enough money we'd all go out to dinner.

From this distance it's a little hard to remember how the thing progressed until now we're all going to Greece and the Greek Islands. The pot fattened very slowly and the price of dining out rose very fast. There were lots of rainy days but also a lot of private commitments.

It was when we'd given up the hope of a deluxe dinner that we started talking about an individually financed weekend at the shore — or maybe someplace none of us had ever been and had always dreamed of going

And somewhere along the line — maybe from Emily Kimbrough's safari with three matronly friends in "Water, Water Everywhere" or Mary Stewart or Helen MacInness mysteries — Greece it turned out to be.

Decolorized white sauce

tion from extra quantities of powdered skim milk. It's cream sauce without the cream — and no butterfat, so it's "heart-smart" and cholesterol-wise, too.

Clip it inside your cookbook and use it for any recipe that calls for white sauce:

- Slim Gourmet

Basic "White Sauce"

 - 1/2 cup dry skim milk powder
 - 1 cup water
 - 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - pinch of white pepper

Put all ingredients in a saucepan and beat until smooth. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened. Simmer for one to two minutes. Makes one cup, 262 calories

Of course we never really thought we were going. It was sort of an adult "Let's pretend." Because the likelihood of four women, each with family, community and social commitments of her own, being able to agree on a time, a specific tour, and then being actually able to make it seemed very remote.

But getting involved in travel folders, brochures, and background reading, each according to her tastes from Homer's "Iliad" to treatises on travel wardrobes from Henry Miller to Mary Renault, we somehow also got involved in actually putting a real deposit on a real tour at a real time.

This was before the roof fell in: devaluation of the dollar, having to move before or after the trip, family milestones, complications galore. There was a time when maybe all that kept us all steadfast was the fact that among the various orbits, there were other friends, ready and eager to take the place of anybody who dropped out.

I still don't believe it. But we shall see.

per cup (16 calories per tablespoon.)

Variations: For "This White Sauce," decrease the flour to one tablespoon. For "Heavy White Sauce," increase the flour to three tablespoons. For creamed fish, vegetables and other bland dishes, add a few drops of butter flavoring or butter-flavored salt — unbelievably rich!

Here are some of the other basic sauces you can now enjoy:

Cheese Sauce — Stir in 4 tablespoons grated cheese until melted. Do not overcook.

Egg Sauce — Mix in one grated hard-cooked egg before serving.

White Mushroom Sauce — Add a dash of Worcestershire sauce and the contents of a 4-ounce can of mushrooms "stems and pieces," chopped fine.

White Onion Sauce — Add a dash of garlic powder and 3 tablespoons of dried onion flakes.

Herb Sauce — Add 2 teaspoons chopped chives, 2 teaspoons minced parsley and a pinch of thyme.

Hot Horseradish Sauce — Add 3 tablespoons drained prepared horseradish.

Quick Bechamel Sauce — Omit salt and add one chicken bouillon cube, one finely minced hard-cooked egg and a generous shake of paprika. Whirl in your blender for maximum smoothness!

Pickle Sauce — Add 3 tablespoons chopped dill pickles.

Pimento Sauce — Add 2 tablespoons chopped pimento.

Curry Sauce — Add 1/2 teaspoon curry powder.

Talk planned on housewife

SCIOGA William Shearer of Stroudsburg High School will be the guest speaker at the Progressive Women's Club of Saylorburg meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Hamilton Elementary School in Scioga.

Shearer will speak on what a housewife can do to reserve her resources at home. Music will be furnished by the Backo Sisters.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Another Kennedy book by an ex-employee: nurse Rita Dallas, who helped Joseph P. Kennedy his final eight years, signed with G. P. Putnam's Sons, publishers. . . . Sinatra sold his jet plane along with most of his pads. . . . The Ingrid Bergman-starring "Capt. Brassbound's Conversion" play decided to assault Broadway no matter how much Times dramassassin Clive Barnes blatantly hates G. B. Shaw. . . . "The Godfather" film smash gave Gay Talese's "Honor Thy Father" Mafia-fact tome a shot in the cash register. . . . "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" raced onto Broadway a week early because it lacked touring-money to stay out any longer; and it's a true triumph. Credit Phil Silvers. . . . Unlike "The Selling of the President," which also ran out of trout cash and braved Broadway to the season's worst reviews on the way to deserved oblivion.

Ringling Bros. lion tamer Pablo Noel has the funniest wild animal act in history: dives onto two of his lions as if they were rugs, kisses and is hugged by one often through the hilarious act, sticks his whole head into a lion's head several times during his fascinatingly funny-tricky turn — despite the cruel fact that an older brother did the same thing — and the lion savagely bit and killed him.

Aforenoted Gay Talese, on the Tonight TV show, defended "The Godfather" scene crossover brilliantly between a baptism and assorted simultaneous Mafia murders by insisting "priests sang 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition' while men were being killed in war." But priests didn't sing it — it was a Tin Pan Alley doggerel by Frank Loesser, who was inspired to its shallow chauvinism by his wartime post writing service-songs in traffic-dangerous, war-hyped Washington, D.C.; a lot of USA-clinging entertainers sang it; no priests. None.

The imminent "Pope Joan" film stars Sweden's Liv Ullmann in a purportedly sacrilegious romp — from young girl, nun, monk, cardinal, finally to Pope; she ends up dead from childbirth during a gaudy Vatican procession. Comedy, eh?

Peter Stone, who wrote the brilliant "1776" musical, and wife Mary lost their eight-year-old female Yorkshire terrier March 1; probably stolen

(it's a new prosperous Manhattan racket). . . . There's a no-questions-asked $500 reward. . . . Contact us, or Barbara Goldsmith at Harper's Bazaar.

Jack Benny's mini-fortune from his penny-pincher ads and commercials for savings banks more than financed his current stay at the expensive chic Sherry-Netherland. . . . "21" had its usual smartly posh crowd: the Henry Fords, the George (former World Bank head) and Louise Woods, Henry Ringling North of the Big Top millions and his lovely Gloria, here for the Ringling premiere at Madison Square Garden. . . . Burgess Meredith does a handsome job renting out his exurban New York estate: Otto Preminger two seasons ago, Robert Shaw and Mary Ure last winter; now to a new foundation pursuing "mind-expansion," backed by centimillionaire Doris Duke.

Brooklyn statesman Abe Stark's family last week suffered a dramatic tragedy: the papers missed: Abe's son Stanley's ex-wife (mother of his children) perished in a fire at her house — on Stanley's re-wedding day. Lovely girl, utterly despaired. . . . Producers Quentin Kelly and Jack Jordan signed contracts over lunch at the Grenadier with Diana Sands for three movies to be shot in Beirut, Sweden and Egypt. All because Diana's Stockholm-filmed "Georgia, Georgia" flick for them is hauling in the crowds.

Actor Pat O'Brien attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts here in 1922; so Pat was honored on his 50th graduation anniversary with its Award of Achievement at this year's graduation at the Booth Theater, north end of Shubert Alley. Pat and his close pal, Spencer Tracy, went from the WWI wartime Navy into the American Academy right after the Armistice, and the rest is showbiz history.

Tony Curtis (now London-based) sold his Hollywood manse to Sonny and Cher. . . . Who's wearing the pants? More than 40 per cent of pants peddled in the past 12 months were bought and worn by women, Master Trouser Corp. E. G. Rosenblatt tells us. . . . Victor Borge's "My Favorite Intermissions" hit the 46,534 sales mark. . . . Happily split Woody Allen and Louise Lasser play lovers the second time since their divorce in "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex"; their first happy post-split flick was

"Bananas."

Wish we could say something nice about the new drama "Voices" at the Ethel Barrymore starring Richard Kiley and Julie Harris, but it's impossible: desultory dialogue, transparent plotting (several of us figured it out by intermission, which is a deadly dissection, because almost anyone could). It's a flat ghost story lacking distinction in any department. . . . Richard Lortz is the playwright, Jo Mielziner created the early-Dracula set, Theoni V. Aldredge designed the spiritless "costumes" which were lustreless if functional, and the producers were Jerry Schlossberg, Jerry Hammer and Adela Holzer; they'll be sorry.

Elder showbiz statesman John F. Royal (he ran NBC for 30 years) is in Dr. Rusk's clinic at University Hospital after a stroke. He was in therapy and when he was told "someone from South America wants to see you." Mr. Royal, an 85-year-old, grumped, "I don't know anyone from South America." But he was urged back to his hospital room where he couldn't see the visitor, whose back was against the vivid sunlight. "I'm sorry," Mr. Royal said, "but you must be looking for someone else." The silhouette walked toward him, arms out. "John — it's me, Mary Martin!" Mary's first visit (before even her family) only hours after she returned from two years in Brazil was to this marvelous showman, wisest we've ever known.

"Country Girl" at the Billy Rose is a good play with a good cast: Jason Robards, Maureen Stapleton, George Grizzard and Roland Winters. . . . The Clifford Odets revival is worth seeing, especially in this drab Broadway stage season. It has occasional vivid lights of Odets' old light-up-the-sky dialogue and a hard-surface tender sympathy for Broadway.

Bumper stickers suddenly GOPed into use: "Vote for Muskie — Or He'll Cry." The old tennis champ Bobby Riggs love-match ended in divorce, and it was Bobby who collected the million. Caterina Valente wed pianist Roy Budd. . . . The Don Rickles Show gets its official network insult any edition. . . . Teeny-bopper idol David Cassidy collected $78,000 for his Madison Square Garden sellout (60 per cent of $130,000).

Ann Landers

Violence for sale

Erma Bombeck

Greeting card aisle

Dear Ann Landers: I've never written to you before but I've got to check with somebody to make sure I'm sane. If I'm in my right mind, a lot of people in this world are crazy.

Recently, I attended a rock concert. I didn't know such madness existed until that night. A guy gets up in girl's clothes, eye makeup galore and a ton of jewelry. He does a number where he chops off a girl's head and sings a song called "Dead Babies." At the end of his act he hangs himself.

That creepy show was a sellout. Twenty-thousand people screamed their heads off and applauded till their hands were raw. I left after the fifth encore and I don't mind telling you I whooped my cookies. What is there in enjoy such sick stuff? Did they have it when you were teen-agers? What do you make of it, Ann?

Square Peg In A Round Hole Dear Peg: When I was a teen-ager there were a few horror films around, such as Frankenstein and Dracula. But we didn't have the steady diet of violence the kids get today in movies and on TV — not to mention a live war in living color, every night on the 6 o'clock news.

Would you believe our sick society has produced a market for torture toys? One of the best selling items is a doll that screams when placed on a torture rack by a monster in a blood-spattered white coat. The customer has a choice of victims — a man, woman or child.

For $5.88 you can buy a Vietnam battleground. Dead and dying soldiers are all over the place in grotesque positions, with horrible expressions on their faces — gaping wounds and missing limbs. For $1.99 you can own a doll named Vampirella. She comes equipped with a beaker of blood. If all this isn't symptomatic of a warped society, I'd like to know what is.

Dear Ann Landers: "I'll Know Where To Look In Fargo" was the last straw. That idiot refers to himself as a happily married man for over thirty years, and says if anything ever happens to his dear wife he's going to look for a lady over 40. Why? Because, he explains in his half-baked way, "She won't yell. She won't tell. She won't swell. She'll be grateful as hell."

I'll bet he already has his next wife picked out, and I hope he gets what's coming to him. My brother-in-law had the same idea, only he didn't wait until my sister died. The lady he was sneaking around with was over 40 — but she yelled, told, swelled and showed her gratitude by naming him in a paternity suit. His reputation was mud in our town after that ugly incident and my sister died of heart trouble as a result of it.

I'd like to know why a man who describes himself as "happily married" is thinking about what he'd like in the way of a second wife. And to sit down and write to Ann Landers about it suggests a strange preoccupation with the subject. If that man were MY husband I'd be afraid to fall asleep in the same bed with him. Do you agree? Or am I paranoid?

Third-Eye Eleanor Dear T.E.E.: I receive all kinds of letter from all kinds of people. Merely because a person writes along odd lines doesn't mean he's "planning anything." I do agree, however, that he might be indulging in some wishful thinking. You are right about women swelling and yelling after 40. It happens all the time.

Church forbidden

By Jean Adams

NO CHURCH: (Q.) My dad does not believe in religion. I can't go to church. He doesn't allow me.

I asked him if I could join my girl friend's youth group at her church. He said no. I talked it over with my grandmother and she asked him, but the answer was still no.

I'd really like to have the chance to go to church. Can you help me?

15-Year-Old Girl in Pennsylvania.

(A.) In America a person is supposed to be free to choose the church he goes to. Or he is supposed to be free not to go to church if he wishes. Your father is exercising his freedom, but not allowing you to exercise yours.

Freedom of religion is among those listed in the First Amendment to the Constitution, which says, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

When you become an adult you will be free to make the choice you want. But I feel your father is making a mistake in not letting you follow your inclination now.

You talked it over with your grandmother. Now talk it over with your father. Don't just ask him. Don't just mention it. Talk it over with him. When he sees you are really deeply serious, he may decide the First Amendment makes sense. I pray he will.

MALE MODELS: (Q.) Are male models in demand? I would really like to be one. I look all right, am five-feet-ten and weigh 130.

18 in New Jersey

(A.) Male models are an important part of advertising, selling and some other fields.

A male model often works regularly at some other job and does modeling in addition. True handsomeness is usually not so important to a male model as a distinctive appearance and a feeling for clothes.

Your measurements are good for a model. I believe the town where you live is small, but there are metropolitan areas nearby which have model agencies.

You could register at one of them and possibly get some bookings.

Countdown begins for next-to-last Apollo moon flight

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The countdown begins Monday for the launch of Apollo 16 next Sunday on America's next-to-last flight to the moon this decade and man's first attempt

Capitol opinion

Shapp still for Muskie

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp says he still endorses Edmund Muskie for president, despite the candidate's poor showing in Wisconsin.

In fact, Shapp is more committed to Muskie than ever before.

This is not sentimentality, Shapp has no choice. He is stuck with his Muskie endorsement and he has got to prove he was right.

Shapp jumped on the Muskie bandwagon last January when the Maine Democrat was so-called "front-runner." Then came the primaries.

Muskie did not do as well as he had hoped in New Hampshire and he finished fourth in Florida and Wisconsin.

A defeat in the Pennsylvania primary April 25 would be the worst setback of all. Shapp is not the kind of guy who can shrug off this possibility. He would be humiliated by a Muskie defeat in this state.

Step up support

The governor's response to the current Muskie slump is likely to be two-fold. He will pressure Muskie to campaign harder in Pennsylvania. He also will step up his own support for Muskie delegates.

This will put Muskie, in a bind.

Muskie is locked in a head-to-head race with Hubert Humphrey in Pennsylvania. But he is faced with a tough battle against George McGovern in Massachusetts the same day—April 25.

If Muskie spends more time in Pennsylvania, he risks an overwhelming McGovern victory in Massachusetts. But Shapp is not very sympathetic when it comes to this point.

Shapp has been saying from the start that Muskie made a mistake when he entered all 23 primaries. He thinks Muskie spread himself too thin.

to land in the rugged lunar highlands.

Three-time space flier John W. Young, a 41-year-old Navy captain, will command the 12-day expedition. Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas K. Mattingly, 36, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles M. Duke, 36, will be making their first space flights.

The goal of the $445 million mission is to explore a hummocky highland plateau 50 miles north of a large old crater named Descartes after the 17th century French philosopher and mathematician.

Three fourths of the lunar surface is made up of highland areas, but until now they have been inaccessible to Apollo landing ships. The four previous surface missions have been to the darker, plain-like lunar seas and hilly areas on their fringes.

Photography of the Descartes region taken from lunar orbit by Apollo 14 astronaut Stuart A. Roosa made it possible for scientists to assign the Apollo 16 crewmen to a landing in the middle of the unexplored highlands.

The astronauts are expected to return with up to 195 pounds of rock and soil samples to give man a better understanding of the highlands and their place in the overall picture of the moon's birth and evolution.

The three astronauts, now living here in a precautionary medical quarantine, are scheduled to set out on their journey to Descartes at 12:54 p.m. EST Sunday. Weatherman say the chances are excellent for ideal conditions at blastoff time.

Because launch day is Sunday and the Apollo program is nearing an end, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) expects an unusually large crowd to be on hand at the Kennedy Space Center to view the launching. Area motels have been booked full for months.

The $25.5 billion moon program will wind up with a spectacular nighttime launch of Apollo 17 next Dec. 6. America's manned spaceflight emphasis then will return to earth orbit with the start of the Skylab space station project in April 1973.

Apollo 16 will cross the quarter million mile sea of space between the Earth and Moon in three days and swing into orbit at 3:23 p.m. Wednesday, April 19.

Young, who came within 10 miles of the moon during the Apollo 10 orbital flight, is scheduled to land with Duke in the lunar module Orion at 3:41 p.m. Mattingly will remain in lunar orbit in the command ship Casper, named after the ghost of cartoon fame.

Young and Duke plan to stay on the moon a record 73 hours—six hours longer than the time logged by Apollo 15 astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin last summer. The extra time will enable the Apollo 16 pilots to get a full night's sleep before the critical lunar take-off and rendezvous operations April 23.

Young and Duke will carry a moon car almost identical to the buggy Apollo 15 astronauts left behind. And the Apollo 16 pilots will use a television camera mounted on the car to once again beam back to Earth color views of the landscape they are exploring.

The touchdown site itself is almost flat with only gently rounded craters. The area, however, is 7,400 feet higher than Apollo 11's tranquility base 235 miles to the northeast.

"It's sort of like Apollo 11 landed at sea level and we're landing in the Andes," Young said.

He described the terrain around the landing site as rolling countryside with a few boulders as big as houses scattered around.

The astronauts plan three seven-hour excursions out of their spacecraft to set up a science station and to explore craters and mountains within a 3.3 mile radius. They plan to drive as far as they can up the slope of Stone Mountain to the south and to the rim of a 3,600 foot wide crater to the north.

"It's going to be off the road mountain driving," Young said in an interview. "It's going to be a lot of fun. I don't think the slopes are so terrible, nothing the rover can't handle. But, there may be a place or two where we'll decide to either back-track or go around."

Geologists believe the area has been covered by two different types of lava that poured out from deep inside the moon between 3.6 billion and 4.0 billion years ago.

These two rock formations appear to account for 11½ per cent of the material seen on the front side of the moon and the objective of Young and Duke is to bring back samples of both.

"I like to call Apollo 16 a voyage to the moon's volcanic highlands," Duke said.

Area funeral director dies in Allentown

ALLENTOWN — John B. Dunkelberger, 80, of Stroudsburg, died Saturday in the Allentown General Hospital.

One of Stroudsburg's longest practicing funeral directors, Dunkelberger began his career shortly after graduating from Eckels College of Mortuary Science, Philadelphia.

He came to Stroudsburg in 1924 to work for Glenn Kisor, a funeral director practicing on Main Street. Eight years later he opened his own funeral home on the corner of Eighth and Ann Streets.

In 1933, he moved his practice to South Stroudsburg and practiced at 134 Broad St. He practiced in Stroudsburg for over 40 years.

Dunkelberger served as president of the Eastern Pennsylvania Funeral Director's Association, of which he was a life member.

Born in Newville, he was the son of the late J. Walter and Alice Snyder Dunkelberger.

He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, and a past member of the Vestry of that church.

A Mason and a member of the Big Spring Lodge 361, F. and A.M., Newville, he was the oldest living Past Master of that Lodge.

He was also Past Commander of Samuel S. Yohe Commandery 81. He was a member of the B.P.O.E. 315, East Stroudsburg, and Past President of the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club.

He was a member of the Monroe Royal Arch Chapter 281, the Irem Temple Shrine and the Pocono Shrine Club and the Lehigh Valley Club, Allentown. He was treasurer of the Old Cemetery Company of Monroe County.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James Hawk of East Stroudsburg; two sons, J. Rowland Dunkelberger of Stroudsburg, and Ray E. Dunkelberger of Stroudsburg, R.D. 3; a brother, Samuel S. Dunkelberger of Shiremanstown.

John B. Dunkelberger

He had four grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday from the Dunkelberger and Kiofach Funeral Home, Stroudsburg, with Rev. William C. Leopold and Rev. Samuel Huffard officiating.

Burial will be in the Laurelwood Cemetery, Stroudsburg.

Viewing will be held after 2 p.m. Monday at the funeral home. A Masonic memorial service will be conducted at 8 p.m. today in the funeral home.

The family will be grateful if any expressions of sympathy are sent in the form of contributions to the Memorial Fund of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

'Dare' operation will face $2.5 million court fight

ERIE — The Pennsylvania Bureau of Consumer Protection has announced it will seek a $2.5 million judgment against Dare To Be Great Inc., a Glenn W. Turner subsidiary, for failing to heed a court injunction to stop sales practices in the state.

The injunction was handed down last September by the Erie County Court.

The BCP said the business has not stopped its sales program as ordered by the court, and that the firm is also ignoring a similar ruling issued by Lehigh County Court in February.

The state agency called 19 witnesses to testify against the firm, 18 of whom told the court they had lost nearly all the money they had invested in the tape recorded motivational courses that are the mainstay of the program.

The courses vary in cost from $300 to $5,000 with a related commission returned to the member for each new person he signs up for the courses.

Legal representatives for the firm did not offer any defense at the hearing held earlier this week.

The Turner subsidiary had operated in the Stroudsburg area prior to the Lehigh County injunction banning their operation.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q. — Why doesn't The Pocono Record print bowling results for the fall and winter seasons, or the results of the WVPO Bowling Classics?

Mrs. J.L., Stroudsburg R.D. 5

A. — Pocono Record Sports Editor Chuck Pierson said he will be happy to print the bowling results if they are brought into his department. The Record had a previous policy of printing the bowling results, but that policy was discontinued by Pierson's predecessor.

Q. — I've noticed that each week you publish the results of a straw poll on the candidates for the November election. It is stated that the poll is taken at Wyckoff's, but it doesn't say how. Could you answer this for me?

D.R., Pocono Lake

A. — The results reported are not official by any means. The department store has borrowed a voting machine from the county and has set it up as a means of voter education. Primarily designed to give new voters a sample of balloting techniques, the results are published merely to sample opinion. The opinion's expressed are in no way regulated. As we understand the process, anyone can use the machine as often as they like with no procedural restrictions placed on the use of the machine.

Q. — My husband and I have recently vacated an apartment we rented for two and one-half years. The landlord promised to forward our month's security after he had time to check over the interior. We have sent him repeated letters and called him twice on the telephone. The last time he hung up on us. What recourse do we have? We are sure no damages were incurred to the apartment during the time we rented it.

T.C., Mount Pocono

A. — A 1968 state law specifies within 30 days after the lease terminates or the apartment is surrendered back to the landlord, he must provide his tenants with a written list of damages for which he claims the tenant is liable under the terms of the lease.

At the same time he must provide payment of the difference between any security deposit and total of damages. If the landlord fails to submit the list within the 30 day period, he is required to return the full amount of the security deposit.

He also loses the right to bring suit against the tenant for damages to the apartment. If the landlord has not submitted the list and refund within the 30 day period, the tenant may sue the landlord. The lawsuit may be brought before a justice of the peace, district magistrate or in a municipal court. The landlord is liable in this suit for double the difference between the amount of the security deposit and the damages to the apartment which he can prove.

Dr. William C. Burry

Burry vows to raise dying county GOP

CANADENSIS — The Republican Party of Monroe County is financially broke and divided into factions, according to Dr. William C. Burry, candidate for the party's leadership.

With a little over two weeks left before Burry will face the test of election in the April 25 primary, the candidate for Chairman of the Republican Party levelled his blast during a Burrell Township Candidate's Night Saturday.

"Many have told me they believe the current Monroe County Republican Party is run by a small clique, and Republicans throughout the county are expected to follow whatever is outlined for them by this clique," Burry said.

"The days of the small backroom politician are outmoded," Burry stated.

To remedy the problems he sees within his party, Burry offered the following solutions:

— Appoint an executive committee that is representative of the voters throughout the county. Decisions made by the executive committee will be arrived at through majority consensus of representatives, and not dictated by any individual or group.

— Establish a system of communication by mail, so committeemen and committeewomen are kept advised on matters of interest to the voters of their townships.

— Establish budget controls and an audit system in order to pull the party out of the red financially.

Claiming no aspirations of being a politician, Burry said he was seeking the party leadership because he has an interest in "better government by superior people."

Listing his qualifications for the post, Burry rattled off a history of party affiliation, educational credentials in commerce, finance and medicine, and military service.

Burry's opposition in the primary race will be Edward Katz. Katz had no prepared remarks for the audience of 66. Speaking extemporaneously, he listed his qualifications for the position of party leadership.

Schweiker at PSEA convention

Senator cites school needs

POCONO MANOR — "Quality, equality and school financing are three major problems confronting U.S. education today," said Sen. Russell Schweiker Saturday night.

Schweiker gave brief remarks to the northeastern Pennsylvania State Education Assn. convention at Pocono Manor.

He contended "school financing is a problem everywhere and we need a national consensus on action on how to finance our local school systems."

A member of the Senate Education Committee, the Republican senator said educational standards can't be measured in dollars.

"We must devise some mechanisms to correct basically unfair variances between different local school districts," he avowed.

Schweiker praised the PSEA for "its leadership role" in pressing for enactment of Pennsylvania's collective bargaining law. He referred to the group as "a slumbering giant that is waking up with a bang."

"Teachers are standing up everywhere for better pay and better working conditions," said Schweiker, "but above all, your primary concern is better education for America's children. You are fast making better education a national priority."

"Reforms in education and equality in school funding are both necessary to get more quality and equality into schools today," he continued.

"However, schools cannot do it all — and we cannot forget that success in schools is also a function of the kind of home and family the child comes from.

"Schools cannot compensate for social deficiencies in the child, home or community, and we must work on these reforms as well."

Telling the group they had his "full and strong support," Schweiker said "I look forward to working closely with you for the good of our nation's school children and teachers, and for the good of our nation through the progress of our educational system."

Collective bargaining urged locally at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — The president of the faculty bargaining unit at East Stroudsburg State College believes his group is "very justified" in asking for collective bargaining rights at the local level for state-owned colleges.

Gerhart Kellner, ESSC president of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties, said "all of us would like to have local negotiations."

APSCUF, representing the 13-state-owned colleges and Indiana University, has charged the Commonwealth with unfair labor practices by refusing to consent to local negotiations.

Dr. John Watkins, state APSCUF president, contends the basis of the charge is that the state's bargainers "refuse to collectively bargain in good faith and conditions of employment peculiar to the locale of the colleges."

"It seems Act 195 gave us the right to local negotiations," said Kellner, "and yet they (the board of presidents) decided this shouldn't be. Certain things are only applicable to certain campuses."

Grass fires plague area

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County volunteer firemen stifled three grass fires Sunday.

Volunteers of the Pocono Mountain force quelled a brush fire near Henryville in the morning, containing the blaze to two acres with three trucks and 18 men.

Four trucks from the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co. stopped a two-acre afternoon fire in Hamilton Square in an hour.

Another fire was extinguished on a half-acre near Little Gap by Kunklestown firemen with two trucks.

East Stroudsburg's Acme Hose Co. whipped a car fire in 10 minutes Saturday afternoon. Three trucks and 41 men responded to the Willow Street fire, believed to have been caused by faulty wiring.

Acting director

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners Thursday named Mrs. Katherine Miller acting director of the Monroe County Civil Defense unit. Mrs. Miller, who is assistant to the administrator, will hold the temporary post until a successor is named for Ernest Kluge who resigned from the position.

Forester predicts

Spring months hot as fire?

STROUDSBURG — April and May have the potential to be two of the hottest months of the year for the state Department of Environmental Resources' Bureau of Forestry.

According to District Forester John Bitzer, these spring months, between the winter thaw and the growth of the forest's summer foliage shade, constitute one of the year's two peak forest fire seasons.

Much of the peak season work in Bitzer's Delaware District — Monroe, Pike and Northampton counties — is preventative. Two indexes are calculated daily rating the speed at which a fire would spread once started and the forest's relative dryness.

The combination of these two indexes provide "low, moderate, high, very high or extreme" fire-danger ratings. In the extreme range, fires have the potential to start quickly and spread furiously.

These ratings are then used in conjunction with the fire weather predictions received daily by the district from Harrisburg over the civil defense teletype.

"This is one of the tools we use to decide what kind of work we'll do," he explains. "If the fire danger rating is high, we have to be prepared."

Towers manned

Preparation, Bitzer notes, constitutes manning five of the district's seven fire towers on a round-the-clock basis and the remaining two during emergency conditions.

In addition, the district maintains a permanent heliport at its Big Pocono tower from which routine surveillance flights take off during emergency conditions.

"The helicopter gives us another detection tool," he amplifies, scanning a large map of the district which lists the towers as well as surveillance flight patterns and checkpoints. "It's kind of like a mobile tower. If it detects smoke, it comes to the nearest checkpoint to give a reading when the fire is not in sight of a tower."

At this point the pilot signals to the radio dispatcher in the district office who plots the fire's location on the map. A fire resource plan lists the district's towers and telephone numbers, available equipment and manpower and contains maps of the district's problem areas to facilitate fire fighting in them.

Helicopter dispatched

If not already at the scene, the helicopter is dispatched which has a carrying capacity of approximately 250 gallons of water to which a fire retardant is added.

"The helicopter actually bombs the fire with water," Bitzer offers. "The local fire companies also help because they can pull right into the field and the helicopter can set down and fill up right from their trucks."

In any given year, the three main causes of forest fires are railroads, household debris burning and arson, according to Bitzer.

"This year we have kind of declared war on debris burning and are conducting an 'Operation Debris Burner' in which we will do some preventative work," he notes, suggesting when debris must be burned, it should only be done on low or moderate fire-danger days.

With Pennsylvania containing the largest combination of both population and forest land, the state spends more on forest fire prevention programs than any other in the country, some $20,000 a year, Bitzer cites.

Just how successful are these programs that reach schools, service clubs and organizations and circulate massive amounts of literature? Very successful, he believes.

"There's no question about it, especially among children. They're the ones that know what Smokey's all about. And they remind their parents."

Carbon man killed in car crash

PAHLMERTON — A 21-year-old Pahlmertown man was killed early Sunday morning and two other persons injured in a head-on crash on Legislative Route 13013 near Pahlmertown.

Dead at the scene was Joseph G. Honchiko, of Pahlmertown. He was the driver of a 1970 Volkswagen sedan that collided with a late model domestic sedan driven by George Winkler, 40, of Pahlmertown R.D. 1.

Winkler and Roberta Wolfe, 20, of Pahlmertown, a passenger in Honchiko's auto, were both admitted to the Pahlmertown Hospital where they are reported in good condition.

Pennsylvania State Police from the Lehigh Valley barracks said the Honchiko vehicle was traveling west on L.R. 13013 about one mile east of Pahlmertown just prior to 1 a.m. Sunday when it collided with the Winkler auto. The investigators indicated that one of the cars was allegedly traveling in the wrong lane but were not specific as to which one it was.

Both cars were demolished and the accident is still under investigation.

Volunteer from every walk of life

STROUDSBURG — Much of the day she's a housewife, nurse, secretary, clerk or even an airline hostess, but on those days and nights off, she's a messenger, cashier, therapist, lab assistant. She's a volunteer.

This is National Volunteer Week, when the nation and state signs proclamations and holds festivities to commemorate those people who give of their time and energy to help others in need. They contribute their efforts to many causes, but perhaps the single largest band of volunteers may be found any day or night at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

By last count, there are approximately 155 adult volunteers at the hospital, not including 36 Candy Strippers — those teenage girls who fill in whenever help is needed with patients or paperwork — and 115 Gray Ladies, an organization sponsored by the American Red Cross.

How valuable are those volunteers? Well, figure that their functions, if they weren't present, would have to be performed by hired help at an average $1.80 an hour wage. Since those three categories of volunteers put in an estimated 26,000 hours of work per year, simple arithmetic shows you would have to pay $46,800 for the work they perform for nothing but the satisfaction of helping those in need.

This isn't counting the hundreds of hours of time donated by students from East Stroudsburg State College, who perform various tasks in the physical therapy department, a field with a greater hourly value yet.

Mrs. Clare Coleman is the director of the Gray Ladies. Her charges take patients through the entire admissions procedure, perform messenger service for the admissions office, serve as receptionists, handle distribution of visitor cards, sort and deliver patient mail, wheel patients into and out of the hospital when needed, pass the newspaper cart and read and write letters for those patients who cannot do so

Not the least of their duties is keeping a patient's room cheerful with flowers. They care for them and rearrange them when necessary, and generally bustle around making life a little easier and more pleasant for patients.

The hospital volunteers, a separate organization, are under the direction of Mrs. Evelyn Primrose. Her girls — and five men, incidentally — catalogue the medical library, handle mail, work in the prenatal clinic on Tuesdays, taking blood pressure and weight readings and provide counseling for the expectant mother. They also provide transportation for patients, especially those in the Mental Health department. As messengers, they transport charts, doctors' orders, lab specimens and supplies and instruments from central supply.

Volunteers may also be found filling lab orders and reports and, especially those who are also members of the hospital's auxiliary — staffing and operating the Hospitality Shop and its extension, the hospitality cart. They staff and operate the Women's Exchange (second-hand clothes and arts and crafts items are sold there) and serve as cashiers at the coffee shop, selling gifts and other items.

For their work, the volunteers will be honored at their annual tea at the Stroud Community House this week. And those secretaries, beauticians, teachers, sales girls, clerks, decorators, technicians, ministers' wives — and even a couple of airline hostesses — deserve all the praise they receive.

Mrs. Primrose notes the volunteer count is the highest ever at the hospital. But, she hastens to add, there never really are enough, and points out she's still looking for more. Anyone interested, she says, can help by contacting her at the hospital.

It's an opportunity to join hundreds of people from all walks of life joined together by a common goal — helping those who cannot help themselves.

Slaughterhouse-Five intelligent but dull

By BRUCE COOK
Dow Jones — Offaway News

Back when people used to talk about black humor, Kurt Vonnegut Jr. was the name mentioned most frequently. And his last novel, Slaughterhouse-Five, or The Children's Crusade, a weirdly funny book about time-and-space travel and the destruction of Dresden, was considered one of the best of a rather good lot.

Now that black-humor classic (if you will indulge such an overblown phrase) has been brought to the screen by George Roy Hill, whose last film, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, and so what kind of movie is Slaughterhouse-Five anyway?

Well, it's intelligent, careful, precise — and also just a teeny bit dull. Here is a movie in which dislocations of time and place recur with some regularity and rapidity, yet thanks to Hill's literal and sober attention to detail you are never once disoriented; you always know just how whatever you are watching fits in with what went before.

But that's not how it should be at all! To capture the feeling and texture of this mad novel, Hill should have shocked, surprised, and confused you throughout the film from scene to scene.

Slaughterhouse-Five should have simulated simulated simultaneity as only a movie can. (Couldn't split-screen have been used?) It should have been bolder, riskier — in short, it should have been crazier!

The fact that the film's most successful sequences have to do with the wartime experiences of Billy Pilgrim is an indication of where the director's real talents and interests lie.

This is straightforward realism: The Battle of the Bulge, capture by the Germans, frozen feet, the destruction of a city in a single air raid, and so on. But even these horrors of war lack the impact they should have, for there is a prettiness, a fundamental softness to the film that mars the rest of it even more.

Yet Slaughterhouse-Five (Universal) isn't a bad film, thanks largely to a good screenplay by Stephen Geller and to the efforts of a fine cast without a single "name" in it.

George Roy Hill, who is always good with actors, deserves some credit for their performances, of course. But that's all. So it goes.

Georgia, Georgia

Every once in a while a reviewer prepares an open heart and a smiling face, really wanting to like a film, only to emerge glum and annoyed when he is unable to do so.

Well, Georgia, Georgia, (Cinema) was such a one for me. It is the first film written by black performer-writer Maya Angelou; it deals more frankly than any movie to date with certain color hangups; and it stars one of America's finest actresses, Diana Sands.

Yet with all that going for it, Georgia, Georgia is bad in a painfully amateurish way that sometimes makes it hard even to watch.

For this, Swedish director Sigi Bockman is greatly at fault, for he has little feeling for the characters and their problems; he lacks skill even in such elementary movie matters as the composition of a shot and the piling of an exchange of dialogue.

But in truth Miss Angelou hasn't given him much to work with. Her story of a black singer (Diana Sands) and a white American photographer (Dick Benedict) who meet and fall in love in Sweden is all right as stories go, except for its rather freaky ending.

But the movie she has written around it is utterly without with, intelligence, or grace. All the movie has is Diana Sands, beautiful and affecting as ever, an actress who can make even her most turgid lines momentarily believable. This time, that's not enough.

Annual television sweepstakes on

Dow Jones — Offaway News

NEW YORK — Columbia Broadcasting System Inc., this year's leader in the TV networks' annual race for ratings, announced unexpectedly broad changes in its fall prime time schedule. The offering will include still greater emphasis on situation comedy, especially ethnic comedy.

But American Broadcasting Co. said its TV network would stand pat this fall with a schedule very much like the current blend of family comedy, action melodrama and made-for-TV movies, which brought ABC this season practically into ratings parity with CBS and National Broadcasting Co. RCA Corp.'s NBC last week disclosed a fall schedule relying heavily on sophisticated, not-very-violent drama.

Prime time is the 3½-hour period of adult-oriented evening programs each night (7:30 to 11 p.m. in the Eastern Time zone). It accounts for close to half the TV networks' revenues.

At CBS, seven current shows were killed, four of them less than a year old — "Cade's County," a western action show, "O'Hara-U.S. Treasury," a law-and-order show about a Treasury agent, and two situation comedies, "Me and the Chimp" and "The Don Rickles Show." The other casualties are "Arnie" and "My Three Sons," both comedies, and "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour," a variety show.

The CBS newcomers include one drama, "Spencer's Mountain," one variety show, to star black comedian Bill Cosby and to be produced by "Laugh-In" creator George Schlatter, and six new situation comedies. In one, comedian Bob Newhart will play a guidance counselor, and in another Sandy Duncan will return to a show halted at mid-season this year when she was sidelined by major surgery.

The other four comedies are more bizarre. "Bridget Loves Bernie," is about an Irish Catholic lass who marries a Jewish young man; "Mash" is an adaptation of the irreverent movie about Army surgeons; "Cousin Maude" is a spin-off from CBS's top-rated "All in the Family," featuring the Auntie-Mammy character from that comedy, and "Anna and the King" stars Yul Brynner and Samantha Eggar in a series based on the hit movie and musical.

Robert D. Wood, president of the CBS network, said the massive changes (seven returning shows will also move to new time slots) didn't reflect weakness in the CBS schedule. He observed that this is the third year of major revamping, and said, "we had a very hot hand this season, and we're reaching to keep those dice hot. We wanted to maximize every opportunity so that if two or three of our new shows should explode, the return would be even greater."

Wood said CBS isn't consciously moving to ethnic humor with "Cousin Maude," "Bridget Loves Bernie," and the Cosby hour. "Comedy and variety are the hallmark of our tradition and our reputation. We're trying to keep up with modern humor, which is devoted to slices of real life. This is moving in an ethnic direction in part, and by keeping up with it we push back the horizons for television."

Even our older shows like "Dick Van Dyke" are moving in these directions. But in "Bridget Loves Bernie," for example, the Jewish-Catholic thing won't be a centerpiece every week."

Former starlet now top writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joanna Lee is one former starlet who did not end up a waitress, car-hop, beautician, hooker, stenographer or a San Fernando Valley housewife.

Under contract to Warner Bros. and Universal more than 15 years ago, Joanna failed to upstage Marilyn Monroe, or even Mamie Van Doren.

Instead, Joanna turned to writing. She is a slender redhead with strong ideas and an independent mind. Married and divorced twice, she wants to become a writer-producer.

As a member of the Screen Writers Guild—10 per cent of whose 2,900 members are women —Joanna has fared exceedingly well. She has written more than 175 scripts for shows ranging from "Bonanza" to "Pete and Gladys."

But now that she wants to become a producer, things are rough.

Joanna formed her own company, Christina Productions. Under this banner and in conjunction with other outfits she has three television pilots in the works: "Joy, Inc.," "Jennifer" and "The Bells of St. Ann."

"As a writer I never knew how my script would finally end up on the screen," said Joanna, definitely ruffled.

"By the time the actors get through with their interpretation, producers satisfy their egos and directors shoot their own version, sometimes I couldn't recognize what I'd written."

"That's why I want to become an autonomous creative unit. I'd like to write the screenplay and then produce the results so that it maintains its original intent. I'd also like to direct."

It is Joanna's take-charge attitude that doesn't exactly thrill studio heads, network chieftains and other producers. "There's an enormous amount of discrimination against a woman once she gets into production," Joanna said unhappily.

"Things aren't so bad for female writers. In fact, we're treated on equal terms with male writers. But when you want to call a few shots you run into a stone wall."

"There's a big difference on the executive level in Hollywood about what a woman can do and say as compared to men in the same job."

The male ego in Hollywood is no small item. Among actors it is overwhelming. Directors are astounding. Producers unbearable.

To compete with a woman on creative grounds generally sets them to grinding their teeth. They can handle actresses. After all, who can compete with 38-24-36?

Joanna Lee was executive script consultant last year for "Room 222."

Harris Survey

Most dislike racial busing

By LOUIS HARRIS

Although the American people oppose busing school children to achieve racial balance by an overwhelming 73-20 per cent margin, the division in the country over the morality of "most white children going to white schools and black children going to black schools" is close.

By a narrow 40-39 per cent, Americans say such separation of the races in the nation's schools is "morally wrong." Paradoxically, parents whose children are bused to school across the country testify they are perfectly satisfied with their current local arrangements, although they are adamantly opposed to "busing to achieve racial balance."

There is no doubt that attitudes toward busing have hardened over the past year. In early 1971 and again in early March of this year, cross sections of 1,600 households were asked:

Suppose the courts ordered that children in your community had to be bused to be sure that white and black children attended the same schools. Would you be willing or not to see children bused for this purpose?

WILLINGNESS TO SEE CHILDREN BUSED

	Per Cent	Per Cent
Willing to see children bused	25	47
Not willing	69	41
Not sure	6	12

The dramatic difference between this year and last is that in 1972 a sizable majority is now willing to defy court orders on school busing, up nearly 30 points from a year ago. Clearly, the political rhetoric of 1972 has left the courts and measures to achieve racial balance through busing isolated from a majority of public opinion.

The Harris Survey also demonstrates that the issue is far more a matter of the racial overtones involved in the busing issue rather than parental objection to busing as such.

The survey found that 51 per cent of the households in the country now have children in them who are 18 years of age and under. Of this directly affected part of the population, 34 per cent reported that they now have children who are regularly bused to school. Most frequently bused are rural pupils, where 58 per cent of the households with school age children report that students are bused.

Nationwide, parents with children who are bused to school daily were asked:

"Do your children find it convenient or inconvenient to take the school bus?"

CONVENIENCE OF BUSING

	Total Parents percent
Convenient to bus	89
Not convenient	10
Not sure	1

By an overwhelming nine to one margin, parents report that daily busing of their children to school works out highly conveniently. Then parents in the national cross section were asked how satisfied they were with busing arrangements for their children.

"Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with busing your children to school?"

SATISFACTION WITH BUSING

	Total Parents percent
Satisfied	85
Dissatisfied	15
Not sure	2

By a thumping 83-15 per cent margin, a heavy majority of parents across the country whose children are now bused to school every day are clearly satisfied with the arrangement. These results indicate beyond any shadow of doubt that the heart of the busing controversy obviously is not parent aversion to busing their children.

The key, of course, is to be found in the words "busing to achieve racial balance." On this score, there is little doubt about the current set of public opinion: "Would you favor or oppose busing school children to achieve racial balance?"

BUSING TO ACHIEVE RACIAL BALANCE

	Total Public percent
Favor	20
Oppose	73
Not sure	7

Astronaut began trip in garage

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Astronaut Thomas K. Mattingly Jr. began qualifying more than 25 years ago in the family garage at Hialeah, Fla. for the Apollo 16 moon trip.

"I've always thought about what it would be like to stand on the moon and look up and see the earth...even before I knew it was possible," said the 36-year-old command pilot.

As a nine-year-old, he converted the garage into a backyard workshop and unlicensed hobby store where he designed and built model airplanes that set a world speed record.

Local merchants closed Mattingly's business, but failed to dampen the fascination for airplanes which led the Chicago-born youth to an aeronautical engineering degree in 1958 from Auburn University, Navy wings in 1960 and an appointment to the astronaut corps in 1966.

Mattingly shunned almost all outside interests and studied night and day to win the Apollo 16 command module pilot's seat. Then misfortune struck 72 hours before launch in April, 1970.

Doctors found he accidentally had been exposed to German measles and bumped him from the crew. He never came down with the disease but was an earthbound observer when an Apollo 13 oxygen tank blew out on the way to the moon, ending that mission short of a lunar landing.

Mattingly was named Apollo 16 command module pilot and prepared to launch on his birthday, March 17, when a series of technical problems postponed the flight to April 16.

"Maybe it's wishful thinking, but if positive thinking will get you there, I'll launch this time," the slim, 5-10, 140-pound lieutenant commander said during an interview at the Manned Spacecraft Center near the Nassau Bay home he shares with his new wife, the former Elizabeth Dailey of Hollywood, Calif., whom he married in 1970.

Mattingly named the Apollo 16 command capsule "Casper" after the friendly cartoon ghost, because astronauts appeared ghostly in their space suits.

While John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. descend to the moon's surface in the moonlander "Orion" for three days of exploration, Mattingly will orbit alone using a $12 million camera and instrument package to record and analyze the lunar surface.
